BOYS DISCOVER STATE CANVAS

Big Piece of State Canvas Stolen from Recent Encampment Found by Boys under Straw Stack and Recovered by Chief Gordon.

Chief of Police George E. Gordon on Sunday evening recovered from beneath a straw stack on the farm of Conrad Cluck, near town, a piece of state canvas measuring about twenty one and a half feet in length. The canvas was evidently placed under the straw at night by some one who was afraid of being found "with the goods" by the state constables and po blame attaches to Mr. Cluck.

The discovery that the tent fly was under the straw stack was made by several little boys who were playing at the Cluck place on Sunday afternoon and got to burrowing under the straw where they discovered the canvas in a bag. They spread the news and after dark Sunday evening Mr. Gordon went to the farm and got it.

Major L. V. Rausch, keeper of the state arsenal, has been apprised of the latest find of canvas stolen during the recent National Guard encampment and it is expected, will authorize its shipment to Harrisburg at once. The tent fly was new and evidently saw its first service in August.

GOOD APPLE NEWS

Says the Harrisburg Telegraph:
"The removal of the restrictions on American apples will be good news to the people in the apple belt in Adams county. For thirty five years the French republic has maintained an embargo against American apples on the ground that they are infected. The fact that apples can now enter France opens a fine market for the apples on the trees in the famous Idaville apple belt."

NO REST FOR THE WEARY

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Richter, who were given two serenades Thursday night, at the bride's home, hurried to the domicile of the groom, near Bittinger's station, Friday afternoon, where they sought peace and rest. However, their coming was heralded, and at a late hour that night the woods reverberated with "can-kan-tankers" din of another assortment of "sleepdisturbers."

MAD DOG SCARE IN FREEDOM TWP.

Dog Acts in a Peculiar Way then Leaves Home and Owner Wants Animal Shot before Any Harm Can be Done.

The mad dog alarm is being spread through Freedom township as the result of the peculiar actions of an animal belonging to B. Wesley Fair.

On Sunday Mr. Fair noticed one of his pet dogs acting strangely but before he could pen up the canine or put it out of the way the dog had started down the road in the direction of Mertz's store. The animal was not accustomed to stray from home and Mr. Fair believes that it is suffering from rabies though he does not know of its having come in contact with any animal so affected.

The dog is described as of medium height, with black body and white legs. The tip of the tail is white as is also the tip of the nose. Mr. Fair requests that any one seeing the dog shall kill it at once without awaiting any developments.

PREPARING FOR INAUGURATION

Big Tent Pitched in Meadow South of Campus. Old Dormitory Electrical Display being Prepared. Other Arrangements.

Preparations for the inauguration of Dr. William A. Granville as president of Gettysburg College are being pushed rapidly and the college campus is a scene of great activity.

The big tent, with a capacity of two thousand seats, has been erected in the meadow to the south of the campus proper. Four United States flags float from the four main poles and the big stretch of canvas presents a pretty sight.

Work at wiring the Old Dormitory which will be illuminated with an electrical display on Wednesday and Thursday nights is going along rapidly and the work will be completed in ample time. The other electrical work is also being rushed along.

The glee club has been practicing for some time for the concert on Wednesday evening as has also the big chorus for the ceremonies on Thursday. The Harrisburg Orchestra of twenty five pieces will assist at the Wednesday evening concert.

More colleges will be represented than those given in these columns some days ago, a number more having been heard from and naming their representatives.

The number of alumni expected for the inauguration is far in advance of the number first estimated and it will not be surprising if five hundred come back for the big event. All indications at this time point to the biggest affair Gettysburg College has ever seen.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES

Deputy Secretary of Agriculture A. L. Martin, director of the farmers' institutes to be held in Adams county this fall and winter has issued the first bulletin in which he gives some idea of the dates and speakers.

SEASON STARTS TOO SOON

"The present season for quail, wild turkeys, squirrels and pheasants comes too early," said Dr. Joseph Kallbas, secretary of the State Game Commission. "The weather we are having this fall proves it. The game is really not good until cold weather sets in and we are now having almost summer heat and yet the quail season is opened."

Dr. Kallbas said that the present weather conditions would undoubtedly result in a sentiment in favor of a change in the game laws to permit of the season being made later in the year. This has been agitated for some time and suggestions are made that November be made the month instead of part of October.

YANKEE DOODLE BOY

The theatrical taste of the theatre going public is constantly changing and lucky indeed is the author who can evolve some "play delicacy" which will succeed in tickling the "amusement palate" of the great majority. Such, however, has been Halton Powell's good fortune with "The Yankee Doodle Boy" the musical play which Powell and Cohan will present here at the Walter Theatre on next Thursday, October 20. The play depicts the many humorous adventures of "Bud Hick" one of those "slangy, flashily dressed, decidedly independent young fellows who are typical products of our great cities. Bud, hails from New York and in the first act is dazzling the natives of the small suburban town of Downer's Grove, N. J., with his "glad rags" as he terms his clothes. The pretty country girls look good to Bud and he makes a deep impression by telling of his great wealth and many remarkable achievements, which exist only in his fertile imagination. However, he establishes himself as a great favorite and is having a most enjoyable time when his "buttering in" properties get the best of him and he mixes in a family quarrel. Bud simply can't stand idly by and see a woman get the worst of it, so he interferes and thereby brings on a climax. In the second and third acts all the characters have "skiddooed" to New York and are in a glorious mix-up. Finally all is straightened out and ends happily through the strenuous efforts of "The Yankee Doodle Boy." During the action of the three acts ten new original song hits are introduced, as well as several pretty dancing numbers.

ATHLETICS VS. CHICAGO

First Game For World's Championship Being Played in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Oct. 17.—The Athletics, champions of the American league, and the Chicago "Cubs," champions of the National league, are playing the first game for the world's championship this afternoon at Shibe park before an audience of upward of 30,000.

Although the batteries will not be announced until the opening of the game, it is said Bender will pitch for the Athletics and Overall for Chicago.

All the seats in the grandstand, which are reserved, were sold out last week. At 6 o'clock this morning the line began forming at the ticket windows for seats on the bleachers. When the gates opened at 11 o'clock the line extended several squares and policemen were on hand to keep order. The bleachers accommodate about 15,000, and the tickets sold at $1 each. Temporary seats have been erected in centerfield and have room for 5000 people. These seats sold at 50 cents. Long before the game began these seats and the bleachers were crowded to their capacity.

SWALLOWS SNAKE IN SLEEP

After Months of Pain, Worried Alien Is Relieved.

Bristol, Pa., Oct. 15.—Never again will Paul Natale, of Lincoln avenue, recline at ease on the green sward and take his rest till his mouth hangs open.

Natale tried that one day last June at the Corona Leather works, and awoke to feel something brush his mouth and to gulp. Now he knows why. He was seized with what he thought was an attack of acute indigestion, and from that day forth he lost weight and ran into a general decline.

His health having been broken up, he went to the Fabiani hospital, Philadelphia, but the physicians there were not able to relieve him. Then he went to a Trenton hospital, but still he lost weight and still suffered biting pains in his abdomen.

Natale was brought back to his home here and continued under the care of the local doctor. The latter sought traces of all known diseases in the man, but could find nothing satisfactory.

Finally he starved him for several days, and then gave him a strong emetic. Up came a garter snake eight inches long, much to the consternation of Natale. The snake is now preserved in alcohol and the patient has gained in weight.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 17.—Superintendent Bowyer, of the naval academy, announced the punishment imposed upon Midshipmen J. W. Anderson, Howard Bode, Jennifer Garnett and William H. O'Brien for indulging in hazing.

All four of the cadets, who are members of the senior class, are given 100 demerits, and Anderson and Garnett, who were officers of the brigade, are given 25 extra marks and reduced in rank for neglect of duty in not suppressing the hazing in which they participated. O'Brien, who was manager of the football team, is removed from this position.

In addition to the above punishment all four of the midshipmen are denied all privileges.

Boy, Mistaken For Squirrel, Shot.

Somerville, N. J., Oct. 17.—Mistaken for a squirrel, Walter Conover, sixteen years old, was shot and seriously injured by Jacob Schnick, another gunner. Conover concealed himself behind a corn stack about daybreak, awaiting the arrival of the gray squirrels. Schnick heard a noise in the corn stack and, believing it to be made by squirrels, fired. The shot struck Conover in the legs and abdomen. His condition is critical.

THE PRESIDENT'S VACATION ENDS

Mr. Taft Gained Several Pounds During Stay at Beverly.

WILL STOP IN NEW YORK

Golfing Was Mr. Taft's Chief Amusement During the Summer, But He Also Greatly Enjoyed Motor Trips.

Beverly, Mass., Oct. 17.—President Taft's vacation ended today, when he left Beverly for New York city. The president will go back to his desk at the White House in fine physical condition except from a sore foot which he is obliged to favor slightly.

The president's lameness had just about disappeared, when he overtaxed the injured foot on the golf course the other day, and he will have to go easy with it during his three days' stay in New York city.

The president, notwithstanding his golfing and strenuous gymnasium work this summer, is going back several pounds heavier than when he arrived on the north shore about July 1. There has been one disappointment for the president in the vacation just ending, and that is his failure to play the Myopia golf course in less than 100.

The Myopia course is regarded by experts as the sportiest in the country, about twenty strokes more difficult than the average eighteen-hole course. It had been Mr. Taft's ambition on this vacation, however, at least to equal the score of 98 which he made last summer. The nearest he was able to come to it this season was 100.

Next to golfing the president has taken the greatest pleasure from his motor trips. He has covered several thousand miles in motor jaunts in the course of the summer, and there has been scarcely a day since his arrival at Beverly that has not seen him taking an evening run with Mrs. Taft and other members of his family over the fine roads in this neighborhood. The president left Beverly this morning and will arrive in New York city early this evening.

He will be a guest at the home of his brother, Henry W. Taft, during his stay in New York. Mrs. Taft and Miss Helen Taft accompanied the president on the trip. The Tafts will attend some theater this evening.

The President and Mrs. Taft attended the Unitarian church here on Sunday morning and the president spoke briefly. Of the Unitarian church the president said: "I don't know how you feel about it, but I feel that we of the Unitarian church have an advantage over most other churches in the excellence of the sermons that we hear, and those of us who have enjoyed hearing the eloquent preachers of our church may well rejoice."

The president said goodbye to several members of the congregation after the service.

PEACEMAKER IS KILLED

Young Engineer Struck When Separating Brawlers at Dance.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 17.—Paul L. Malone, a young civil engineer, of Baltimore, employed as an inspector on the state road now under construction in this section, was fatally stabbed while attempting to separate several persons engaged in an affray at Indian Springs, where the young folk of the neighborhood were holding a dance.

Martin Bryndolph, of near Indian Springs, was arrested on the charge of murdering Malone and is in jail here without bond. Malone was watching the dancers, when the trouble began. Seeing that some of his friends were involved he tried to get them away, when he was attacked by Bryndolph.

BABY SHOT DEAD

Tried to Pull Pistol From Older Brother and It Was Discharged.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 17.—While his father and mother were in church, John McLaughlin, the thirteen-year-old son of Peter McLaughlin, took his father's pistol from a drawer in the sideboard.

The shining metal attracted the attention of the boy's two-year-old brother Willie, who made a grab for the weapon. The elder boy tried to pull the weapon away, but in doing so it was discharged. The bullet entered the younger boy's chest, killing him instantly. The pistol was of the hammerless safety variety used by the city police.

Danville, Pa., Oct. 17.—Traumatic meningitis, induced by bumping his head against another boy's at school, two weeks ago, killed six-year-old Carson James here.

Spoons.

The origin of the spoon is uncertain. It must have been invented at a very ancient date, for it is found among people that have never come into contact with civilization. The necessity of having some implement for dipping water seems to have led first to the invention of the calabash or the use of the coconut shell and later on to the spoon.

KETCHEL SLAIN FOR INSULTING WOMAN

Police Discover Another Motive For Crime.

Springfield, Mo., Oct. 17.—W. A. Hurtz, slayer of Stanley Ketchel, the middleweight champion pugilist, has been captured near Nangua, Mo., seventeen miles from the scene of the shooting.

Ketchel was shot while eating breakfast and died after being removed to a hospital in Springfield.

With the arrest of Mrs. Goldie Smith, who posed as the wife of the pugilist's slayer, the police have discovered another motive for the crime.

Mrs. Smith has signed a statement to the effect that Ketchel insulted her on the morning of the day the shooting took place, and that news of the conversation that offended her so inflamed Hurtz that he was greatly wrought up.

The police are inclined to believe Mrs. Smith's story.

Following is the statement signed by Mrs. Smith:

"While I was working in the house Ketchel insulted me. I became angry. He was greatly wrought up over the incident and pleaded with me not to say anything to Hurtz. He said he would give me the best team of horses on the farm if I would keep quiet. I made him no promise.

"When Hurtz came home I told him what Ketchel had said to me. He was very angry. I think that is what caused him to kill Ketchel."

BURNED HERSELF TO DEATH

Insane Woman Ends Her Life by Fire as a Religious Sacrifice.

Georgetown, Del., Oct. 17.—Crazed over religion and with a delusion that she must sacrifice herself, Mrs. Sarah L. Roberts, wife of a farmer who lives near town, set fire to herself in her husband's absence and was burned to death. Her home was also burned to the ground.

For several years Mrs. Roberts had suffered from attacks of insanity, and a few weeks ago she killed and burned a cat and dog under the belief that she must offer a sacrifice to God.

Her husband drove to town, leaving her alone. As he was driving home he saw flames breaking from the top of the house, and, rushing into the burning building, found the woman with the clothes burned from her and dead.

Hunting Firebugs.

Pottsville, Pa., Oct. 17.—James Lynd, chief engineer of the Pottsville fire department, is on the trail of firebugs who have made repeated attempts to burn the town. Following the fire which destroyed the stable of F. E. Day, another stable was fired in an entirely different section of town, this time the stable of Isaac Seaman being burned. Cues have been obtained which it is said will result in arrests.

THE SOLAR SYSTEM.

Its Flight Through Space Toward the Constellation Lyra.

In what direction are you moving? If you are going toward the Battery you will answer "south;" if up Broadway you will answer "north;" toward the Hudson you will say "west," and if in the direction of the East river you will reply "east."

These answers might be correct as regards the surface of the earth, but they may be far from answering the question, for the earth is turning eastwardly at the rate of about a thousand miles an hour, which carries you in that direction very much faster than you can move over the ground.

But that rotating motion, constantly changing your direction in relation to all outside the earth, is quite subordinate to another far more rapid motion that is carrying you and the earth around the sun eastwardly on an entirely different curve at the rate of about nine miles a second, ever changing your direction in relation to the stars in a circular path 279,000,000 miles long.

Yet that isn't a key to your direction, for little you, your tiny earth and your third rate sun, with all of its planets, are traveling as a united group in one direction, differing from all those mentioned. Find the large first magnitude bluish white star Vega, in the constellation of Lyra, and you will be looking in the direction of the flight that our system is taking through space. If you will observe the stars around Vega for a few hundred years you will find that they are apparently slowly separating, while the stars at the opposite pole of the heavens are slowly drawing together. That means we are moving toward Vega and away from the opposite point. This motion is in a circle that cannot be exactly measured, but there is evidence to show that it will require 18,200,000 years for our system to complete it.

Then can you answer, "I am moving toward Vega?" Perhaps so, but more likely perhaps not, for it is far from unlikely that you and your solar system, with Vega and all of the galaxy of stars that eye can see on the clearest night, are moving in the same general direction around some great common center yet unknown. Who can tell? No one now, but the possibility is presented to the human mind from what we know of the motions of the great universal clock of space that marks off the seconds of eternity.—New York Herald.

A MAN'S GLOVE.

In the Old Days It Served as Proxy For Its Owner.

In the early days everything was not regulated for the people as it is now by the government and the law courts. Europe was still young then, and people had rough and ready means of dealing with one another, of buying and selling or giving goods and property and settling disputes. A glove, as it was very close indeed to a man's hand, came in course of time to be looked upon as taking the place of the hand itself, and sometimes took the man's place and was made to represent him.

For example, to open a fair it was necessary then to have the consent and protection of the great lord in whose country it was going to be held. Those who wished to open the fair would come to the nobleman and petition him to be present. He might be very busy or bored at the idea of having to go, yet he would know that it must be opened or his people would be discontented. So he would say to the leaders of the people: "No, my trusty fellows, I can't open the fair in person, but I will send my glove to do it. You all know my glove. Nobody has one like it in the country. It is the one my lady mother embroidered for me in colored silks and silver wire, and it has a deep violet fringe. You can hang it above the entrance of your fair grounds as a sign that you are acting with my permission. If any one disputes your right or touches his master's glove I will attend to him. That's all!" So the glove would travel in state to open the fair.—Westminster Gazette.

Ready With His Tongue.

James T. Brady, a prominent member of the New York bar in the last century, was noted for his ready wit. Quick as Mr. Brady was with the readiness of his race for repartee, he sometimes met his match among his own countrymen. He was once examining an unwilling witness who persistently called him Mr. O'Brady. At length, even his proverbial good nature being a little ruffled, he said to the witness: "You need not call me Mr. O'Brady. I've mended my name since I came here and dropped the O." "Have ya, now?" retorted the witness. "Pon my soul, it's a pity ye didn't mend yer manners at the same time!"

Why He Was on Time.

Beranger was one day complimented by a lady on the punctuality with which he kept his engagements. "It is a pleasure," said she, "to invite you to dinner, for you never make us wait."

"I am no longer young, madam," replied the poet, "and experience has taught me one thing—it is dangerous not to arrive at the precise hour, for the guests who are waiting for you will pass the time in discussing your faults."

MEASURES ALTITUDES.

The Use of the Barograph on Aeroplanes and Balloons.

What the compass is to the mariner the barograph is to the aviator. The barograph is an instrument for measuring altitudes. The pressure of the air as it increases or decreases causes a delicate needle to trace a wavy line upon a cylinder which revolves by clockwork. This line indicates not only the exact height that is reached by the aviator, but also the speed at which he is traveling.

The barograph is kept in a weather proof box with a glass front, which is attached to a bar of the aeroplane or to a rope on the balloon. It is officially sealed before the aviator embarks, so there is no possibility of tampering with it, and the seal is taken off at the presence of witnesses at the end of the flight. In this way it is possible to establish absolutely and graphically the altitude which an aviator attains in his aeroplane or balloon.

It is necessary for the aviator to watch the barograph constantly, as it indicates a change in the elevation almost to the foot. The sky pilot has to keep his eye on the indicator much as the man at the wheel of the weighing ship watches his compass. Should the aeroplane or the balloon rise or fall ten or twenty feet the aviator would not be conscious of it unless he looked at the wavering needle tracing its permanent record on a chart before him. This tells him immediately of any changes in the nature of the air currents and gives him timely warning of aerial dangers.

These instruments are so delicate and so accurate, it is said, that a man might hang one of them about his neck in its glass case or carry it in his hand and climb a flight of stairs, the height of his ascent being graphically indicated by the inked needle on the machine.—New York Press.

WELLMAN WIRES "ALL IS WELL"

Balloon America Well on Way Across Ocean.

EXACT POSITION UNKNOWN

Big Airship is Several Hundred Miles at Sea on Its Voyage to Europe, Heading North-Northeast.

Atlantic City, Oct. 17.—Walter Wellman and the five members of his crew aboard the dirigible balloon America cut loose from this continent at 12.40 Sunday.

The last message expected from the America until it strikes the transatlantic lane came into the wireless station at Nantuxet, on the northerly end of Nantuxet, and was relayed through Sagapont station and from there to the United Wireless station here. No further messages are expected until some big liner with wireless outfit receives word from the America flashes or carries news of the welfare of the balloon crew to this country.

The final message, according to the operator here was: "All well; no trouble with machinery. Expect to make the trip."

Both Wellman and Jack Irwin signed the message, which was rushed to Mrs. Wellman, Mrs. Vaniman, wife of the chief engineer of the Wellman expedition, and Leroy Chamberlain, Mr. Wellman's secretary.

Exact Position Unknown.

The exact position of the America when the last message was delivered appears to be a matter of conjecture, both on shore and with the members of the America's crew, who didn't report having made an observation. The operator at Nantuxet added the information that the America couldn't be made out from his station and was probably several hundred miles at sea, still heading north-northeast in the effort to get into the steamer lane and keep in communication with the shore. Before the first message received from the America's wireless operator had been picked up at Nantuxet light here was great uneasiness here regarding the position and probable fate of the airship, both among the members of the family and friends of the daring aeronauts and the thousands of residents and visitors deeply interested in the flight.

The first message received from the America since early Saturday evening was timed at 8 a. m. Sunday. The message was brief and merely said that all were well and the balloon was moving "O. K." according to the wireless operator here. The operator at Nantuxet believed he had made out the America by the aid of glasses and that she was then swinging a little more to the north, apparently making for the Grand Banks, where the steamers cross.

When no word was received here Sunday morning of any sighting or speaking of the America, there was a general fear that misfortune had befallen the air vessel and her daring crew. Visitors besieged newspaper and telegraph offices for news of the Wellman party, and Operator "Bob" Miller, in charge of the wireless station here, received hundreds of queries asking him for the latest wireless news.

Mrs. Wellman and her daughters and Mrs. Vaniman at the Chalfonte were among the few who declared their assurance that all was still well with the America.

"I believe that Mr. Wellman and his men are still all right and that they will reach Europe," said Mrs. Wellman. "Their plans have been most carefully made, and I share the confidence that Mr. Wellman expressed before his departure of the success of the project. The very fact that we have received no news appears to me to be favorable, for any accident to the America would probably have reached here within a very short time." Both Mrs. Wellman and Mrs. Vaniman were overjoyed, however, when they received the messages telling of the safety of the America and her crew.

Before the America passed outside the wireless zone every effort was made by Wellman's backers in this city to assure Wellman, Vaniman and the crew of the well wishes of Atlantic City and to give them every possible bit of encouraging information. President Joseph W. Salus, of the local syndicate which has supported the Wellman project, flashed the following message:

Sent Encouraging Message.

"Walter Wellman, aboard the airship America: Godspeed your project. Success means your enrolling as a second Columbus. Do everything possible to keep your friends in Atlantic City and your family informed of both your daily situation and progress. Mrs. Wellman, Mrs. Vaniman and other members of the families of the America's crew are most hopeful. Joseph W. Salus."

Every effort was made to have this message reach Wellman, but it is not known here whether the flashes were received aboard the airship. Wireless experts here fear that the sound waves from the wireless plant aboard the America may be muddled by the vibrations of the America's engines and interfered with the power of the currents from some big ocean steamers and land stations.

DOLLIVER'S DEATH HITS INSURGENTS

Family Flooded With Messages of Sympathy.

THE END CAME SUDDENLY

Senator Had Apparently Recovered From Attack of Indigestion, But Collapsed After a Walk and Died While Being Examined by a Physician.

Fort Dodge, Ia., Oct. 17.—Hardly recovered yet from the shock of the sudden death of Jonathan Prentiss Dolliver, junior United States senator, his family and friends are answering the flood of telegrams and messages of sympathy that poured in from all parts of the country. Particularly is he mourned by the insurgents, of whom he was a leader.

The junior senator had been suffering more or less for a week from indigestion and was believed to have recovered, when the attack became acute. He had just returned from a walk down town and had no more than said he thought he was better than he collapsed.

An osteopathic physician was summoned. While using an instrument to listen to the heart action, he suddenly discovered that he no longer could hear the heart beats, and at first thought his instrument was faulty, but examination showed his patient was dead.

Senator Dolliver was taken ill following his trip through Wisconsin on a speech making tour for Senator La Follette.

Was Born in West Virginia.

The senator was born near Kingwood, Va., now in West Virginia, in 1858. He received his early education in the public schools, and was graduated at the University of West Virginia in 1875. He studied law at Morgantown, W. Va., and was admitted to the bar in 1878. Seeking newer territory in which to begin his career, he went to Fort Dodge, Ia., and there began practice.

In 1888 he was elected to congress by the Republicans of the Tenth district of Iowa, and was five times re-elected. On Aug. 22, 1900, the governor of Iowa appointed him United States senator to succeed the late John H. Gear, and he was re-elected to the two succeeding terms. His present term as senator would have expired in 1913.

Senator Dolliver was made temporary chairman of the Republican state convention in 1885. His speech there started him on the highway to success.

He immediately became noted as a campaigner, and had made as many as 100 speeches in as many consecutive days.

In congress his fame as an orator continued to grow. Particularly did he make a record for himself in the house by his speeches on the currency question.

In his service in the senate Mr. Dolliver broadened and became less bitterly partisan.

He was among the early promoters of a railroad rate measure. In 1905 he introduced a bill to increase the interstate commerce commission to seven members, at a salary of $10,000 each, with greatly increased powers. He was opposed to unlimited court reviews, and later drafted an amendment to the Hepburn bill providing a form of review that would be less sweeping. He represented the administration's side of the rate controversy in 1906 and made an impassioned plea for the Hepburn bill.

Tafts Send Sympathy.

Beverly, Mass., Oct. 17.—President Taft sent this message: "Mrs. J. P. Dolliver, Fort Dodge, Iowa.—Mrs. Taft and I extend to you our heartfelt sympathy in your great sorrow. The state has lost one of its ablest and most brilliant statesmen. The country has lost a faithful public servant. WILLIAM H. TAFT."

HUSBAND SHOTS MASHER

Resents "Oh! you Kid," as Addressed to His Wife.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 17.—M. B. Baskin, a prominent young Atlantian, employed in local railroad offices, was perhaps fatally shot on Forsyth street by Hamp Lambert, a liveryman, following an alleged insulting remark addressed by Baskin to Mrs. Lambert as she was passing along the street with her husband.

It is said that Baskin called out, "Oh! you kid," as the Lamberts passed him, whereupon Lambert turned, drew a revolver and, placing it against Baskin's neck, and fired. Lambert surrendered to the sheriff. Baskin is in a hospital.

Bathing Popular at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, Oct. 17.—With the mercury climbing up to eighty degrees on Sunday, bathing became a popular sport and several thousands enjoyed a dip in the waves. The tide was high, but the sea was not rough. Hotel men look for a busy week if the weather keeps the record it is making for bright, sunny, cheerful and beautiful weather.

How I Won

By GROVER S. GRIFFIN

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

When I chose journalism for a profession I did so because I had literary tastes and a facility for writing. I soon found that the principal ingredient in the success of a newspaper man, especially while on the lower rungs of the ladder, is getting ahead of the other fellows. I soon tired of the routine work of collecting news and was thinking of giving up journalism when something happened; in other words, my opportunity arrived.

The president of the United States proposed to Russia and Japan, who were then at war, to settle their differences. A meeting was called between the representatives of the two nations to meet at Portsmouth. Our American newspapers are not used as they are in Europe to getting ahead of one another in news of matters pertaining to government and diplomacy or my opportunity would not have occurred at this time, for I was very young, had no acquaintance calculated to give me advance news and had not distinguished myself in my profession. The managing editor of an obscure paper sent me to Portsmouth simply to transmit the news as it came out, with comments on the crowds and descriptions of the distinguished participants.

But a wild dream came into my head. It occurred to me that if I alone among several hundred newspaper correspondents could get at the treaty of peace, if one were made, and telegraph it to my paper so that it could be published before any other paper published it I might make myself famous as a newspaper man. And here opportunity came in again to help me. On my journey to Portsmouth I traveled on the same train as one of the Russian representatives. He had with him a number of attendants, consisting of secretaries, stenographers and servants. I made the acquaintance of several of the suit, and it occurred to me that I might possibly make a deal with some one of them to give me the news for a consideration. I doubt if I should have attempted to get anything out of a Japanese in that fashion, but I knew that a Russian was much more amenable to the persuasion of funds.

I fell into conversation with one, whom I shall call Potodoff, a copyist. I gave him a cigar and several drinks from my flask. I explained to him my desire and found a willing listener. I ended by offering him $50 if he could get me the treaty, should one be made, in time to send it to my paper for publication ahead of all other journals.

It may seem remarkable that I should have offered so small a sum for such a valuable prize. The truth is I offered him all the money that had been given for my expenses after paying for my tickets, and he had no knowledge of where he could sell his information elsewhere. Besides this, when the deal was made neither of us dreamed that there would be any success in our efforts. We had plenty of time on the train to concoct any scheme that might be necessary for the transmission of information from him to me. This was the most delicate part of my work for after the convention once met and proceeded with its deliberations any possessing its secrets would be watched carefully.

The plan we adopted was this: I would take one meal a day at the hotel where Potodoff's master put up. I would wait outside the dining room until I saw Potodoff go in, then go in myself and, going out before him, pick up his hat instead of my own, he later taking mine. At the next meal we would change hats back again.

Well, the convention met and began its deliberations. Potodoff and I did not have any need to change hats till the articles of the treaty were being brought up for discussion. Then as soon as an article was written out my man, who was engaged in the work, would put a copy of it, written on thin paper, in his hat, and I would soon after be its possessor.

I was in a continuous state of anxiety lest the plenipotentiaries should fail to agree and I should have all my trouble for nothing. Besides, I fancied that if a treaty were made and I offered it at a telegraph office in Portsmouth in advance of its release I would not be able to get it through. I therefore resolved, if I did get it, I would take a train for some small place distant from Portsmouth and telegraph it from there.

Finally the convention began discussing the articles one by one. Every time an article was agreed to the same evening I would find it written out within the lining of the hat I would put on on leaving the hotel dining room. I was getting anxious for the convention to end. I had not informed my paper that I was reserving all my money for a purpose and was in debt for everything I required.

At last the final articles were signed and a time appointed for giving the treaty to the newspaper representatives. The evening it was signed I got the last article from Potodoff, took a train for a near station, and the same night at 11 o'clock a telegraph operator was clicking its text to my paper.

How I got home, what I did when I got there, I will not dwell upon. My position as a newspaper man was established.

Gray Hair Restored. My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur hair remedy and I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it. MISS E. A. ROSS, Sharon, Mercer Co., Pa.

A VOLCANIC BEACON.
Curious Lighthouse of the Republic of San Salvador.
The republic of San Salvador, on the Pacific side of Central America, is the only government on earth that collects lighthouse fees on account of a volcano that it owns.
The volcanic beacon is about eight miles inland from the port of Acajutla and its pillar of cloud by day and its fire sky night are visible for many miles out at sea. It erupts every seven minutes and is just as accurate as any revolving light that warns mariners in any part of the world. This volcano has been keeping up this seven minute series of eruptions ever since any one can remember. It is a favorite amusement of visiting gringos to sit by the hour during the lazy afternoons and, watch in hand, time the eruptions until they tire of the amusement and fall asleep.
Every vessel that puts in at Acajutla—and it is quite an important port of call along that part of the coast—has to pay its lighthouse fee. There is no other lighthouse than the volcano, but that is a sufficient excuse for the government of Salvador to make a charge for its services. The explosions that accompany the eruptions sound like detonations of heavy charges of dynamite, but are not sufficient to shake the ground perceptibly more than a mile or two from the summit of the crater. At night there is a spurt of fire, a muffled report and a cloud of steam. By day only the steam is visible.—New York Press.

A Tragedy of Instinct.
The processionaries are rather strange caterpillars. A single string of them five or six yards long has just climbed down from my parasol pines and is at this moment unfolding itself in the walls of my garden, carpeting the ground traversed with transparent silk, according to the custom of the race. To say nothing of the meteorological apparatus of unparalleled delicacy which they carry on their spine, these caterpillars, as everybody knows, have this remarkable quality—that they travel only in a troop, one after the other, like the blind of Breughel or those in the parable, each of them obstinately, indissolubly following her leader; so much so that our author having one morning disposed the file on the edge of a large stone vase, thus closing the circuit, for seven whole days, during an atrocious week, through cold, hunger and unspeakable weariness, the unhappy troop on its tragic round without rest, respite or mercy, pursued the pitiless circle until death arrived.—Forum.

Called For Glory Divine.
Among the customers in a drug store one day last week was a little girl who is known to her playmates in that vicinity as "Peggy." As she stood waiting for her turn it could be noticed that she was repeating something under her breath in her effort to remember what her mother had said her to buy.
"Mother wants five cents' worth of glory divine."
"Of what?" said the young clerk, who was standing there as if stunned by a hard blow of a baseball bat.
"Glory divine, glory divine," came the reply in a louder voice than when she had made the original request.
"You had better go home and have your mother write it down on paper, little girl," said the clerk, feeling that the girl was too sure to argue with him.
Soon she returned, and, handing the note to the clerk, he read, "Five cents' worth of chlorate of lime."—Philadelphia Times.

A Bit of Sicily.
"There is no Italian town more picturesque than the Sicilian capital, Palermo," writes a traveler. "In its port it crowded the queerest coasting craft I have ever set eyes on. Sailing ships of all rigs, their hulls painted all the colors of the rainbow, nose up against the quay, where mule carts, whose drivers are shouting at the top of their voices, wait to take away the merchandise. The narrow street where the custom house officers examine the goods brought ashore is a place of terrific noise. When a driver, two clerks and two custom house officers are discussing the contents of a bale or a cask it seems as though murder must be committed within the next few seconds. But somebody signs something, the cart moves on, and everybody laughs."

Murdering Shakespeare.
"I never hesitate to cut and slash and change any play until it suits me," said Stuart Robinson to his legal adviser on one occasion.
"I suppose you edit Shakespeare with a blue pencil?" replied the lawyer.
"You can just bet I do."
"Then, I imagine, you would plead guilty to an indictment for murdering the Bard of Avon?"
"No; I would not, but I would admit dissecting his corpse."

Needs Prodding.
"It is a great mistake, Mabel, to trifle with the affections of a man who loves you by encouraging some one else."
"Well, he's a little slow, auntie. I think he needs a pacemaker."

Kindness.
Life is short, and we have never too much time for gladdening the hearts of those who are traveling the same dark journey with us. Oh, be swift to love; make haste to be kind!—Amiel.
Specialization.

A GAME OF BLUFF
By MARGARET BARR
Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Well, sweetheart, what's the trouble?"
"George has lost $1,500 to that horrid Shapiro. I have just drawn a check for it."

Worseley thought, Mrs. Helen Dana, a widow, who doted on her son, was his fiancée. He knew what sums she had given George to pay gambling debts already. Finally Worseley said to her:
"Give me the check. I will give it to Shapiro."
"What good will that do?"
"I don't know that it will do any good."

She wrote the check and made it payable to Shapiro, as Worseley suggested. He put it in his pocket and left her.
This scene took place in New Orleans near the middle of the last century. The best people of that gay city gambled, fought duels and did a great many other things that are now obsolete, though most of them have survived in some other form, except dueling, which is a thing of the past even in the Crescent City.

Worseley went to the club, where he expected to find Shapiro, and he did. Shapiro was not playing at the time, and Worseley beckoned him to a room where no one else was present and handed him Mrs. Dana's check, saying:
"A man who will win money from a boy and accept the winnings from that boy's mother deserves to be expelled from respectable society."

Shapiro's brows contracted. He stood with the check in his fingers scowling at Worseley.
"It seems to me, Mr. Worseley, that you have deprived me of the power of declining this check by your words. Therefore I shall hold it while I am considering what to do in the matter."

"You can't present it till bank hours tomorrow morning; meanwhile I shall consider for you."

"Indeed?"
"Yes. Go into the coffee room and order a glass of wine. I will be with you directly."

"And suppose I decline to do your bidding?"
"It will do no good. My purpose is to make a pretext for what is to take place between us in order that neither young Dana nor his mother will be brought into the affair."

Shapiro, seeing that he was in for a meeting with Worseley, yielded to the plan of concealing the true cause, went into the coffee room, took a seat at a table and called for wine. In a few minutes Worseley passed him, pretended to stumble on Shapiro's foot and, seizing the glass on the table, threw the contents in Shapiro's face, saying, "I'll teach you to trip me." Then Worseley walked away.

There was nothing for Shapiro to do but send a challenge at once, the affair having been witnessed by half a dozen men. Worseley accepted, chose Derringer pistols, appointed the time at sunrise the next morning, in a wood where the duels were usually fought.

Worseley was not a professional duelist, but was known to be a man of wonderful nerve. Shapiro, who made his living at cards, had recently appeared in New Orleans with letters sufficient to secure his admission among gentlemen and had not yet been detected for what he was. When the two parties were on the ground Shapiro's second asked Worseley's the distance and received the reply, "Over a handkerchief." This he reported to Shapiro, who saw that it meant death to both principals.

After a conference between Shapiro and his second the latter asked if there was any way by which the matter could be settled in honor to both parties.
"Tell him," said Worseley, "that if he will return the check I gave him this evening with a receipt in full for the debt for which it was intended I will apologize to him for what I have done on the ground that his tripping me was unintentional."

Shapiro was disposed to regard the whole affair a bluff by which to regain possession of Mrs. Dana's check and that by standing firm Worseley would withdraw at the last moment. But his second warned him that Worseley did not bear any such reputation. Nevertheless Shapiro, who was anxious to retain the money, concluded to bluff, and not till the two seconds, each holding a corner of a handkerchief, instructed their principals to advance with weapons extended till the muzzles were on a line with what separated them did he throw up the sponge. Then he accepted Worseley's terms.

The check and a receipt for the amount of its face passed, and Worseley intimated that he would state at the club that he had been mistaken in Shapiro's intention and had apologized to him. But Shapiro said he might spare himself the trouble, since he would leave New Orleans that day and such a statement would be of no use to him.

Worseley took the check and the receipt to Mrs. Dana.
"How did you get it?" she asked.
Worseley told her, and she, paling, said:
"Suppose he had preferred to die rather than yield?"
"I knew he would prefer nothing of the kind."

THE GRANGE FIELD

Activities of Patrons of Husbandry in Various States.

Co-operation a Prominent Feature in All States Whereby Money is Saved in Buying and Made in Selling.
Kansas a Remarkable Exponent of Working Together For Mutual Interests—Dates When State Grange Meetings Occur.

[Special Correspondence.]
The following facts about the work being done in the grange in the various states have been secured through the various state masters. It shows what diversities in aims and purposes the grange has in different commonwealths.

New Hampshire.—Among the co-operative enterprises in this state are the Grange Mutual Fire Insurance company, New Hampshire Grange Fire association, Union Grange Fire association, New Hampshire Grange Life Insurance association and several smaller undertakings, all of which are grange co-operative enterprises. Among the specific objects which the grange is trying to accomplish are the further equalization of school privileges and larger support of the State Agricultural college. The next state grange meeting will be held at Concord, Dec. 20-22.

Michigan.—Direct buying—that is, without the middleman's services—is one of the co-operative enterprises of this state. Fire and life insurance is also a prominent feature. Life insurance was taken up the past year for the first time and seems to be meeting with good success. Specific objects are fair distribution of school moneys, regulating telephone companies, securing better roads and securing specific taxation on mineral products. The next meeting of the state grange will be held at Traverse City, Dec. 13-16.

Maine.—There are numerous grange stores in this state doing a large and profitable business. A producers and consumers' exchange, with headquarters at Charlestown, Mass., was established for selling farmers' products and buying and distributing directly to Maine patrons. Among the grange enterprises the store at Houlton is one of the most successful ever undertaken in any state. Among the specific objects which the grange is striving for are legislation for better roads, a businesslike and economic system for expending money appropriated for building and maintaining roads, enactment of a direct primaries law and an amendment to the educational laws in which the state school money shall be apportioned to the different towns in proportion to the number of scholars instead of in proportion to the valuation of the municipalities. The state grange will meet at Augusta, Dec. 20.

Ohio.—The executive committee of this state grange has made favorable contracts for several years with twine and fertilizer companies to furnish their wares to grangers at wholesale prices. They also have trade arrangements with many firms whereby members of the grange net 10 per cent reduction from retail prices on dry goods, groceries, farm implements, wire fencing, etc. Its specific objects are to engage the attention of the grange in building up the order in the state and harmonizing all differences, and success has been beyond expectation. The state grange will meet at Zanesville, Dec. 13-15.

Kansas.—The co-operative enterprises in the state are the Johnson County Co-operative association, at Olathe; Spring Hill Co-operative association, Spring Hill; Linn County Co-operative association, Cadmus; New Lancaster Co-operative association, New Lancaster; Patrons' Co-operative bank, Olathe, $50,000 capital and $50,000 surplus; the Patrons' Fire and Tornado Association of Kansas, $11,400,000, increased over $2,000,000 since Jan. 1 last. The executive committee of the Kansas state grange will present at the next meeting a system of co-operation which will be state wide for furnishing supplies for the farm and home as well as the sale of farm products. Good roads and reform taxation are other matters in which the grange is interested. The next state grange meeting will be held at Olathe, Dec. 13-15. J. W. DARROW.

National Grange Excursion.
Arrangements are being made by State Secretary Drake of New Hampshire for another excursion to the national grange at Atlantic City, N. J. Everything connected with the tour will be first class, and all expenses of the trip will be covered by a low price. Patrons will have a choice of all rail and part steamer routes to New York City, where the delegation from that section will meet the main party. Patrons will arrive at Atlantic City Wednesday, Nov. 16, and can remain there until the following Tuesday. A side trip will be made to Washington, where the New Hampshire excursionists of 1908 will hold a reunion.

Grange Rejuvenates a Town.
A grange was organized in Deersville, O., about a year ago—an old town that had gone to seed until the grange rejuvenated it. It was near this place that the Moravians flourished years ago.

A Long Wait.
At a Denver hotel a woman went into one of the telephone booths and sat down. It is not possible to get a telephone number from the booth—the girl at the board has to call it. The girl went to the booth. "Did you want a telephone number?" she asked of the woman.

"No," replied the woman. "I'm just waiting for this elevator to go up."—Argonaut.

Very Considerate.
George—Do you see that pretty girl in the hammock? Harold—Yes. What of her? George—I saved her life last summer. Harold—Indeed! At the season? George—No; on the front porch. I proposed to her and she said she'd die if she married me, so I excused her.—Stray Stories
